Dear :

The Treasury Department is making an extensive study of the proposed changes in the make-up of our coins. When their report is submitted to the President a message will be sent to the Congress, from which legislation will be introduced and sent to the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency.

In talking with Treasury officials as well as members of the Senate Banking Committee, it is clearly evident that the interests of the vending machine industry will be given good consideration during the course of these deliberations.

Sincerely,

Everett McKinley Dirksen
