Dear:

In response to your communication with reference to the need for additional school facilities, let me say that early last year I introduced a bill to provide for federal aid in the construction of classroom facilities.

This general approach to the problem has been complicated somewhat by a bill now under consideration both in the House and in the Senate. I am hopeful, however, that we can work out a suitable measure that will do justice to all and meet the problem in this field. I am grateful for your interest.

Sincerely,

Everett McKinley Dirksen
Dear:

The bill to provide a limited amount of federal aid to education has been bogged in the House of Representatives and the prospects for action in this session seemed remote. There has been some action recently in the Committee and there may yet be a bill at this session. If it does receive approval in the House of Representatives it will then be referred to the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare for hearings and further consideration. I am quite certain that this Committee will thoroughly explore every aspect of this proposal so that we shall be completely fortified with all of the facts.

There is a good deal of emphatic sentiment both for and against any federal aid proposal and I shall be fully sensible of all the viewpoints which have been expressed with respect to this measure.

Sincerely,

Everett McKinley Dirksen
Federal Aid to Education

May

1956

Dear:

The bill to provide a limited amount of federal aid to education has been bogged in the House of Representatives and the prospects for action in this session seemed remote. There has been some action recently in the Committee and there may yet be a bill at this session. If it does receive approval in the House of Representatives it will then be referred to the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare for hearings and further consideration. I am quite certain that this Committee will thoroughly explore every aspect of this proposal so that we shall be completely fortified with all of the facts.

There is a good deal of emphatic sentiment both for and against any federal aid proposal and I shall be fully sensible of all the viewpoints which have been expressed with respect to this measure.

Sincerely,

Everett McKinley Dirksen
Dear:

The bill to provide a limited amount of federal aid to education has been bogged in the House of Representatives. There has been some action recently in the Committee and there may yet be a bill at this session. If it does receive approval in the House of Representatives it will then be referred to the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare for hearings and further consideration. I am quite certain that this Committee will thoroughly explore every aspect of this proposal so that we shall be completely fortified with all of the facts.

There is a good deal of emphatic sentiment both for and against any federal aid proposal and I shall be fully sensible of all the viewpoints which have been expressed with respect to this measure.

Sincerely,

Everett McKinley Dirksen