Dear …:

I appreciate your communication pointing out that Senate 215, commonly referred to as the pre-price increase notification bill, is a most unrealistic and perhaps dangerous approach to the question of inflation and price stability.

It would appear to be an entering wedge, the ultimate result of which would be complete across the board price and wage control in peace time, for the simple reason that there can be no price control without wage control at the same time.

I shall be very attentive to this proposal.

Sincerely,

Everett McKinley Dirksen
