United States Senate

Supreme Court

Sept., 1966

Dear:

I never cease to be amazed by the fact that our courts seem to bend over backward in emphasizing the rights of criminals when they are apprehended and seem to forget the victims of the crime.

There has been a considerable stir about this latest decision of the Supreme Court and it now appears that a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee will undertake some hearings on this matter to see what, if anything, might or can be done. I sincerely hope so.

Sincerely,

Everett McKinley Dirksen
